A BATTALION BAND.

The question of the appointment of a Battalion Band for the Hauraki Division has been occupying the minds of the authorities for some time past, and it is with pleasure we have to announce that an honour has been conferred upon the Thames Naval Band. It is now some time since applications were called for the position, which carries with it financial and musical advantages, and several bands proffered their services. The officer commanding the Hauraki (in this instance Major Porritt) has the power to appoint the band, and no one envied this gentleman his task. The matter was, however, brought under the notice of Lieutenant Colonel Davis, the officer commanding the Auckland Division, and he in turn called upon Major Porritt to make a selection and for all the matter settled and for all the matter settled and for all the matter settled.

PREFERENTIAL DUTIES.

Mr. Seddon in his remarks touching German goods, only voiced the feeling of a great many people when he said the day was not far distant when preferential duties must be levied on foreign imports into the colony. But reciprocal preferential duties must be levied throughout the Empire in favour of the productions of the different parts of it. Free trade is just in principle, but it is Quixotic for England or the colonies to admit the products of other countries, which are not equally liberal with British productions. It is said that the British Parliament is about to discuss the question of Fair Trade, with a view of the adoption of the principle. The pressure of German and American goods on the English manufacturer is becoming so great that unless some curb is placed on the foreign imports England might as well hand over the trade of the country to the bounty fed manufacturers of Germany, or the American Trusts and Companies. Goods are sold to England and to the colonies by both countries, in many instances cheaper than they are sold where they are made. Production is stimulated in America by offering inducements to workmen to turn out the greatest quantities of goods, and the excellent organization of the immense factories enables the work to be done cheaply. So great is the production in America that the State is subsidizing great lines of steamers to carry the goods to distant parts, as for instance, Spreckels' lines to Australia and the Far East, and Germany has for years followed a similar plan, as in the case of the Dutch Lloyd's to Australia. Mr. Seddon has done well in calling attention to the question, and preparing the people to support the change in policy.

M. DE BLOCH AND HIS THEORIES.

Mr. Jean de Bloch, whose death was recorded in a recent issue, was a member of the Russian Imperial Council of State, but to Anglo-Saxons he was better known as the author of "Is War Now Impossible?" and other volumes dealing with the future of warfare. His theories occasioned widespread comment, and were readily welcomed by friends of peace. Quite recently M. de Bloch delivered a series of lectures at the Royal United Service Institution, London. In his first lecture the Russian theorist deduced from the operations in South Africa a conclusion which should be extremely welcome to those who do not see eyes to eye with Rudyard Kipling on the question of conscription. It was that conscription, as practised in Europe, has been proved to be useless, and that the huge armies of the Continent are as ineffective as they are costly. In his second lecture he dealt with the probable course of a war between the Triple and Dual Alliances, or between France and Germany. In the case of a war between the five millions of either alliance, M. de Bloch gave reasons for thinking that no decisive result would be attained. If the same way France, with two million troops might win with absolute confidence the onslaught of a similar number of Germans, "believing Germany would soon be obliged to cease fire from economic reasons." M. de Bloch believed firmly in the invincibility of a nation defending its independence. This, he declared, was the inference to be drawn from the Boer war—an inference which really includes everything else. "The spirit of nationality," he thought, "is such a strong force, and no nation would submit to national annihilation without first exhausting every means of defence." Even severe defeats would in his opinion be always followed by guerrilla warfare, and the modern rifle is "primarily a guerrilla weapon, and tends to put the civilian on a level with the regular." M. de Bloch, from his observation of the war, was thus led to the conclusion that there is really no need for the training of men as in M. de Bloch's remark in another lecture, in accusing the Boers of fighting in an unscientific way. If the Boers were more successful because they lay behind entrenchments, never exposed themselves, and kept instead of walked, they "merely adapted themselves to new conditions of war, and did what Continental military men had often declared it was necessary to do." The sacrifice of a single life merely in order to show heroism was in his opinion nothing better than a crime, and that the Boer method did not waste lives unnecessarily was its best justification.—Press.

Mr. Haselden, S.M., of Wellington, fined a man £5 for assaulting a bailiff who was placed in his house by an order of the Court.

A member of the Eighth Contingent was ordered by the Wellington magistrates to execute an authority to the Defence Department to pay 5s per week for the support of his illegitimate child, and to pay 25 by way of instalments.

The Premier made a scathing reference recently to the action of an Auckland Magistrate who declined to punish in a case where some local bartricks were brought up for pelting rotten eggs at a religious congregation. He hoped this lapse of duty was both the first and last of its kind that would occur in this colony.

The Christchurch Tinsmith Union is the first to pass a resolution re Mr. Seddon's decision not to open a State coal mine. The resolution is as follows:—"That this union learns with regret that the Premier does not purpose opening up a State coal mine, and trusts that he will endeavor to immediately give effect to the Act framed last session, and thus place the public's interests before those of private enterprise."

Good grazing for horses and cattle, four miles from town. Plenty of grass. Good shelter trees, and clean running streams, is 6d per week. Every care taken, but no responsibility incurred.—Apply W. Wood, Pollen Street.—Advt.

An exchange says:—"The old age pension does not always work out according to the wishes of the recipients, as a local case shows. A man has £250 in the savings bank at 3 per cent, for which he receives as interest £7 10s a year, but in consequence of having so much property, his pension is reduced by £13, leaving his total income at £12 10s, whereas if he has no property he would receive his full pension of £13; and yet he cannot give his £250 away to entitle him to the increased income."

For the past three years the question of a band for the Second Battalion has been repeatedly before the Defence authorities. The Thames Naval, Hauraki, and Waikato Bands offered their services, and although the matter was repeatedly brought up nothing was settled until Lieutenant Davis brought the matter to a head by referring it to Major Porritt, with a request to recommend one of these bands. Major Porritt has now settled the matter by recommending that the Thames Naval Band be accepted on the grounds that its application was the first, it is the oldest band in the district, is centrally located, being convenient to Auckland or any part of the district, and its members are efficient musicians. He has now instructed Adjutant Somerville to swear the Band in.

The cyclist was then informed that if he was found repeating the offence he would be fined a sovereign on every occasion—the maximum fine allowed by the rules.

A graceful compliment has just been paid by the Commander-in-Chief to Lieut. R. W. Collins, late of the Fourth New Zealand Contingent (son of Lieut. Colonel Collins), who through a severe wound received in action at Otsoohoop in August, 1900, was compelled to give up the commission granted to him in the Imperial Army.
